Print History

First edition June, 2023

This book and the accompanying volumes present songs predominantly from the British isles of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. With few exceptions, the songs are secular in nature.

These songs originally appeared in manuscripts or publications as part songs, madrigals, lute songs, or ballads with tunes indicated only by name.

I have harmonized and set tunes, as well as converted lute songs to part songs or songs with instrumental accompaniment. Therefore, many of these settings are unique to this collection. I hope liberties I have taken will be forgiven.

Editions of this book include an ensemble edition for voices and instruments, a keyboard edition, a lute edition and a Renaissance guitar edition. The lute edition presents the original lute parts for the lute songs and part songs where available, as well as new lute parts where none existed before. Some of the keyboard pieces are based on originals, although most are newly written by me, as are the Renaissance guitar parts.

Chords have been added for the melodies as an aid to accompanists.

The original spellings and punctuation have been preserved where possible. If a word is not immediately identifiable, try sounding it out. Most of these songs predate dictionaries and standardized spelling.

An Amorous Dialogue between John and his Mistris.

Being a compleat and true Relation of some merry passages between the Mistris and her Apprentice, who please'd her so well that she rewarded him with silke broad pieces for his pains.

Here by this Dialogue you may discern,

While Old Cats nibble Cheese the young ones learn.

To the Tune of, Packingtons bound, or, what should a young woman do, or, Cantam digni.

Come John sit you down, I have somwhat to say, But John, 'tis a difficult matter to find,
In mind I have kept it this many a day;
Your Master you know is a fool and a dot,
And mends nothing else but the Pipe and the pot:
Till twelve or till one he will never come home,
And then he's so drunke that he lies like a spouse:
such usage as this would make any one mad,
but a woman will have it if 'tis to be had.

This true forsooth mistris, the case is but hard,
That a woman shou'd be of her pleasures debared:
But 'tis the sad face of a thousand beside,
Or else the bothe of 'em is foully helpe'd:
There is not a man amang twenty that thires,
For ten in fifteen that do lye with their wifes:
yet still you had better be merry then sad,
and take it where ever it is to be had.)

A man that is trusty and constantly kind:
An iwas of court gallant he cringes and bows
He's presently known by his Dachs and his bows:
And though both his cloaths and his speeches be gay,
Yet he loves you but onely a night and away:
such usage as this would make any one mad,
yet a woman will have it, if 'tis to be had.

What think you of one that belongs to the Court?
They say they are pastured, and driven to fruit:
He'll present you with bracelets, and jewels, rings
With stones that are precious, & the most faire things:
Or if you are not for the Court nor the town,
What think you forsooth of a man with a gown
You must have a Gallant, a good or a bad,
and take it where ever it is to be had.

A la mode de France or the French Report

tune is “Nonesuch” from
The English Dancing Master,
1651, John Playford (1623-1686)

Dey raise deyr Valiant Prentices,
To guard deyr Cause with Clubs,
Dey root deyr Bishops out of doors,
And Preach demselves in Tubs,
De Cobler and de Tinker too,
Dey will in time advance,
Pox take dem all, it is (Mort Dieu)
Not a la mode de France

Instead of bowing to deyr King,
Dey vex him with Epistles,
Dey furnish all deyr Souldiers out
With Bodkins, Spoons, and Whistles, Dey bring deyr Gold and Silver in,
De Brownists to advance,
But if dey be cheat of it all,
'Tiz a la mode de France

But if when all deyr wealth is gone,
Dey turn unto deyr King,
Dey will make all amends again,

Thou art happy while that doth last but I say as I find,
That woman's love is but a blast that turneth like the wind.

If that be true yet as thou say'st that women turn their heart;
Then better speak of them thou may'st
in hope to have thy part.

Such folks shall take no harm by love that can abide their turn;
But I alas can no way prove in love but lake and mourn.

But if thou wilt avoid thy harm
this lesson learn of me:
At other fires thyself to warm and let them warm with thee.

Yet should my faythfull harte,
At no tyme from thee flye:
Show loue therfore for loue againe,
Or els for loue I dye.

Although the sun were bent,
To burne me with his beames:
and that mine eyes throw greuous pangs,
Should send forth bloody stremes.
Yet would I not forfake,
But stylly to thee woulde crye:
To shewe me loue for loue againe,
Or els for loue I dye.

Ye though ech sterre were tournd,
Untyll a fiery darte:
And were all ready bent with payne,
To perce throwe out my harte.
Yet coulde I not forsake,
To loue thee faythfullye,
Extend thy loue for loue againe,

Ye though eche soule were formde,
A Serpent fell to be,

tune is "The Clean Contrary Way", from Cambridge University MS Dd.6.48.

The musical score consists of three systems of music, each with two staves. The top staff is in common time and the bottom staff is in common time. The music is set in a variety of keys, indicated by the key signature and the letter names above the staff. The lyrics are written below the notes, corresponding to the music. The first system starts in G minor (Gm), then moves to G major (Gm), then D major (D), then G minor (Gm), then F major (F), then G minor (Gm), and finally D major (D). The second system starts in C major (C), then moves to G major (G), then B-flat major (B^{flat}), then C major (Cm), then B-flat major (B^{flat}), and finally F major (F). The third system starts in B-flat major (B^{flat}), then F major (F), then G minor (Gm), then C major (Cm), then G minor (Gm), then D major (D), and finally G major (G). The lyrics describe various trades and their characteristics, such as 'The Tay-lor sowes, the Smith he blowes,' and 'The Cuc-kold's turn'd a pothe-cary.'

No John, I confess that not any of these
Had ever the power my fancy to please;
I like no such blades for a trick that I know,
For as soon as they've trod they are given to crow;
Plain dealing is best, and I like a man well,
That when he has kiss'd will be hang'd e're he'll tell:
My meaning is honest, and thou art the Lad,
Then give it and take it while 'tis to be had.

Some Prentices use it, forsooth, I allow,
But I am a Novice and cannot tell how:
However, I hope that I shall not be blam'd.
For to tell you the truth I am somewhat ashamed;
I know how to carry your bible to Church, but to play with my mistris I'm left in the lurch;
Yet if you can show me the way good or bad,
Ile promise you all that there is to be had.

You quickly may learn it, my Johnny, for Thus,
Before you proceed we begin with a buss;
And then you must clasp me about with your arm,
Nay, fear me not Johnny, I'le do thee no harm:
Now I sigh, now I tremble, now backwards I lye,
And now my dear Johnny, ah now I must dye:
Oh! who can resist such a mettle some Lad,
and refuse such a pleasure when 'tis to be had.

A mistris so noble I never will leave,
Twere a sin and a shame such a friend to deceive;
For my master's shop no more will I care,
Tis pleasantest handling my mistresses mare.
A fig for indentures, for now I am made
Free of a gentiler and pleasanter trade,
I know when I'me well, I was never so mad to forsake a good thing when 'tis to be had.

tune is "Row well, ye mariners" from The English Dancing Master, 1651, John Playford (1623-1686)

Musical score for "As one without refuge" in G major, 6/4 time. The score consists of three systems of music. The top system starts with a treble clef, a sharp sign indicating G major, and a 6/4 time signature. The lyrics begin with "As one with - out re - fuge," followed by "For life doth plead with pant - ing breath And." The middle system continues the lyrics with "Too lit - tle is my skil," "By pen (I saie) my loue to paint, And," and "Your gleams hath gript the hart," "a - las with - in my cap - tive breast: O." The bottom system provides harmonic support with a basso continuo line, indicated by a bass clef and a series of bass notes.

The Batchelors Delight

tune is "The King's delight" from The Dancing Master, 1665,
John Playford (1623-1686)

The musical score consists of three staves of music with lyrics. The first staff begins with a treble clef, a key signature of one sharp (G major), and a common time signature (4/4). The lyrics describe a man named Sampson who is a son of Job, having a world's end and a damsel. He is described as being swelled with care, having a bold, stout, and playful nature. The second staff continues the lyrics, mentioning that Sampson was a man of many qualities, including being bold, stout, and playful. The third staff begins with a treble clef, a key signature of one sharp (G major), and a common time signature (4/4). The lyrics describe Sampson as being bold, stout, and playful, and mention that he was a man of many qualities, including being bold, stout, and playful. The music features various chords and note patterns, with some notes having dots above them indicating they are sustained. The lyrics are written in a simple, rhythmic style, matching the musical structure.

Though he hath been at work all day,
 as hard as he is able,
 Yet when he comes home, without delay
 she bids him rock the cradle;
 And if he doth the same refuse,
 The durty quean will him abuse,
 and beat him with the ladle.

Marriage is honourable indeed,
 but tell what's house-keeping?
 It makes the good man's pockets bleed,
 his purse is alwaies weeping:
 Nay more, hee's alwaies full of care,
 Whilst he that is a Batchelor
 Is fast and soundly sleeping.

A foward woman takes delight to see her husband vexed;
 Both morning, evening, noon and night,
 the poor man is perplexed:
 She brawls and scoulds, she frowns & pouts,
 And, to her speeches, scoffs and flouts are ever more annexed.

And therefore I will single live,
 in spight of lust and passion;
 Pure virgins good examples give,
 and worth our imitation.
 For before matrimony arose,
 The mode of wearing yellow hose and horns were out of fashion.

Man is a little world of himself,
 and therefore wanteth nothing;
 He needs not care for worldly pelf,
 so he have food and cloathing;
 And marriage is a fickle thing,
 Which sometime doth in love begin,
 and often ends in loathing.

And lastly, to conclude my song,
 vain joy is but a bubble.
 A double heart, and a double tongue,
 hath fill'd the world with trouble;
 And therefore to avoid all strife,
 'Tis best to lead a single life,
 we will have nothing double.

He took her about the middle so small,
and laid her on the plain,
And after he had got his will,
he took her up again:

Now you have had your will, kind Sir,
and put my body to shame,
Even as you are a courteous Knight,
tell me what is your name?

Some do call me Jack, Sweet-heart,
and some do call me John,
But when I come to the Kings fair court,
they call me Sweet William:

He set his foot into the stirrup,
and away then he did ride;
She tuckt her girdle about her middle,
and ran close by his side:

But when she came to the broad water,
she set her breast and swam;
And when she was got out again,
she took her heels and ran:

When she came to the Kings fair court,
she knocked at the ring,
So ready was the King himself to let this fair Maid in:

O Christ save you, my gracious Leige,
your body Christ save and see,
You have a Knight within your court
this day hath robbed me:

What hath he robbed thee of, Sweet-heart,
of purple or of pall?
Or hath he took thy gay gold ring from off thy finger small?

He hath not robbed me, my Liege,
of purple or of pall,
But he hath got my maiden-head,
which grieves me worst of all:

Now if he be a batchelor
his body ill give to thee,
But if he be a married man
high hanged shall he be:

He called down his merry men all by one, by two and by three;
Sweet William usd to be the first,
but now the last comes he:

He brought her down full forty pound
tyd up within a glove, Fair Maid, I give the same to thee,
and seek another love:

Oh, ill have none of your gold, she said,
nor ill have none of your fee,
But I must have your fair body,
the King hath given me:

Sweet William ran and fetcht her then five hundred pound in gold, Saying, Fair Maid take this to thee,
thy fault will never be told:

Tis not thy gold that shall me tempt,
these words then answered she;
But I must have your own body,
so the King hath granted me:

A Shepherds Daughter as I was,
you might have let me be,
Id ner a come to the Kings fair court to have cravd any love of thee;

He set her on a milk-white steed,
and himself upon a gray,
He hung a bugle about his neck,
and so they rode away:

But when they came unto the place where marriage-rites was done,
She provd herself a Dukes Daughter,
and he but a Squires Son:

Now you have married me, Sir Knight,
your pleasures will be free;
If you make me Lady of one good town,
Ill make thee Lord of three:

Accursed by the gold, he said,
if thou hadst not been true,
That should a parted thee from me,
to have changd thee for a new:

Their hearts being so linked fast,
and joyned hand in hand,
He had both purse and person too,
and all at his command:

and tell her strange tale that the like was nere [heard]:
Was reckon her pedigree, long before Prute,
No body was by her that can her confute:
But still she replide, Sir, I pray let me be,
Gif ever I have a man. Blew-cap for me.

A French-man that largely was booted and spurd, long lockt, with a Ribon, long points and breeches.
Hees ready to kisse her at every word,
and for further exercise his fingers itches:
You be pretty wench Mitris, par ma foy,
Be gar me doe love you, then be not you coy:
But still she replide, Sir, I pray let me be,

A haughty high German of Hamborough towne,
a proper tall gallant with mighty mustachoes:
He weepes if the Lasse upon him doe but frowne,
yet hees a great Fencer that comes to ore-match us,
But yet all his fine fencing could not get the Lasse,
She denyd him so oft, that he wearyed was:
For still she replide, Sir, I pray let me be,
Gif ever I have a man, Blew-cap for me.

A Netherland Mariner there came by chance,
whose cheekes did resemble two rosting Pomwaters:
To this Cany Lasse he his sute did advance,
and as taught by nature he cunningly flatters:
Isk will make thee, said he, sole Lady oth Sea,
Both Spanirds and Englishmen Shall thee obey,
But stil she replide, Sir, I pray let me be,
Gif ever I have a man, Blew-cap for mee.

These sundry Sutors, of seuerall Lands,
did daily solicite this Lasse for her fauour;
And euery one of them alike vnderstands that to win the prize they in vaine did endeavour:
For she had resolued (as I before said)
To haue bonny Blew-cap, or else bee a maid.
Vnto all her suppliants still replyde she,
"Gif ever I have a man, Blew-cap for mee."

At last came a Scottish-man (with a blew-cap),
and he was the party for whom she has tarry'd;
To get this blithe Bonny Lasse 'twas his gude hap,
they gang'd to the Kirk, & were presently marry'd.
I ken not weeble whether it were Lord or Leard;
They caude him some sike a like name as I heard;
To chuse hime from au she did gladly agree,-
And stil she cride, "Blew-cap, th'art welcome to mee."

The musical score consists of three staves of music, each with a treble clef and a key signature of one sharp (F#). The first staff begins with a common time signature, followed by a 6/4 time signature. The lyrics for the first section are:

In a pleasant morning in the merry month of May,
Come ly was her countenance and love ly was her looks,
At length she changed her smiling with a sigh ing song,
My fa ther's rich and wealthy and hath no child but I,

The second staff continues the lyrics:

A mong the fruit ful meadows a young man took his way;
See ming that wan ton Ve nus had writ her in her books.
Be wai ling her bad for tune that was a maid so long:
Yet want I still a hus band to keep me com pa ny.

The third staff concludes the lyrics:

And ga zing a round him what ple a sures he could see,
Many a smir king smile she lent a midst those mea dows green
For ma ny are much youn ger, quo th she, hath long been wed,
My years are young and ten der and I am fair wi thal,

Yet is there now a young man will com - fort me at all?

The young man which listened and mark'd her grievous moan, Was sorry for to see her sit musing all alone.
He nimbly leapt unto her which made the maid to start,
But when he did embrace her,
it joyed her woeful heart.

Fair maid, quoth he, why mourn you?
What means your heavy cheer?
Be rul'd by me, I pray you and to my words give ear.
A pleasant note I'll tell you,
your sadness to expel.
Good sir, how do you call it?
The truth unto me tell.

'Tis call'd the carman's whistle,
a note so sweet and good,
It will turn a woman's sadness into a merry mood.
Good sir then, let me hear it,
if it be no harm.
Doubt not, quoth he, fair maiden,
I'll keep you in mine arm.

But first, let me entreat you with patience to attend Till I have brought my music unto a perfect end.
If I may hear your whistle,
quoth she, I will be still,
And think so I molest you,
'tis sore against my will.

When he to her had whistled
a merry note or two,
She was so blithe and pleasant
she knew not what to do.
Quoth she, of all the music
that ever I did know,
The carman's whistle
Shall for my money go.

Good sir, quoth she, I pray you,
Who made this pleasant game?
Quoth he, a youthful carman
Did make it for his dame.
And she was well contented with him to bear a part.
God's blessing, quoth the maiden, light on the carman's heart.

For never was I pleased more better in my life Than with the carman's whistle which pleaseth maid and wife.
And sir, I do beseech you,
however I do speed,
To let me hear your whistle
when I so stand in need.

Quoth he, farewell, fair maiden,
and as you like this sport,
So of the carman's whistle
I pray you give good report.
Good sir, quoth she, I thank you for this, your token pain,
But when shall we, I pray you,
meet in this place again?

Quoth he, at any season
by day or night, Command the carman's whistle
for pleasure and delight;
And count me slack and slothful
if twice you send for me.
I'faith, then, quoth the maiden,
I'll give thee kisses three.

E: Oh my louer faire my dearlinge and mine heire
Full sore for the I did lament
But no man durst speak but thei wuld him threat and quickly make him repent.
B: Then was I deliuering their hands, but was faine to put in bands
And good suerties for my forth comminge
Not from my house to departe nor no where els to sterte,
As though I had ben away runninge.

E: Why dere Lady I trow those mad men did knowe
That ye were daughter unto Kinge Harry
And a princesse of birth one of the noblest on earth
And sister unto Quene Mary.
B: Yes, yet I must forgeve al such as do live
if they wil hereafter amend
And for those that are gone God forgeve them euery one and his mercy on them extend.

E: Yet my louer dere tell me now here
For what cause had ye this punishmente
For the comons did not know nor no man wuld them shew
The chief cause of your imprisonment.
B: No nor thei them self that wuld have decaid my welth
But only by powre and abusion
Thei could not detect me but that thei did suspect me
That I was not of their religion.

E: O cruell tirauntes and also monstrous giauntes
That woulde such a swete blossomē devour
But the lorde of his might defended the in right
And shortened their arme and powre.
B: Yet my louer dere marke me well here
Though thei were men of the devill
The scripture plainly saith al thei that be of faith must nedes do good against euill.

E: O swete virgin pure longe may ye endure
To reigne ouer us in this lande.
For your works do accord ye are the handmaid of the lord
For he hath blessed you with his hand.
B: My sweete realme be obedient to gods holy commandement and my proceedings embrase
And for that that is abused shalbe better used and that within shorte space.

E: Dere lady and Quene I trust it shalbe sene
Ye shall reigne quietly without strife
And if any traitors there be of any kinde or degre
I pray God send them short life.
B: I trust al faithful herts wil play tru subiects parts
Knowing me their Quene & true heir by right
And that much the rather for the loue of my father
That worthy prince King Henrie theight.

E: Therefore let us pray to God both night and day
Continually and never to sease
That he will preserve your grace to reigne ouer us long space
In tranquilitie welth and peace.
Both: All honor laud and praise, be to the lord god alwayes
Who hath all princes hartes in his handes that by his powre & might he may gide them aright
For the welth of all christen landes.

Come gallant now, come loyterer,
for I must chide with thee:
But yet I will forgive thee once,
come sit thee downe by mee,
Faire Lady rest your selfe content,
I will indure your punishment,
And then we shall be friends againe.

For every houre that I have stayd,
so long from thee away,
A thousand kisses will I give,
receive them ready pay,
And if we chance to count amisse
againe wee'le reckon them every kisse,
For he is blest that's punisht so.

And if those thousand kisses then,
we chance to count aright
We shall not need to count againe till we in bed doe light:
And then be sure that thou shalt have,
thy reckoning just as thou shalt crave.
So shall we still agree as one.

And thus they spent the silent night,
in sweet delightfull sport,
Till Phoebus with his beames so bright,
from out the fiery port
Did blush to see the sweet content, in sable night so vainely spent,
Betwixt these Lovers two.

And then this Gallant did perswade,
that he might now be gone:
Sweet-heart, quoth he, I am afraid,
that I have stayd too long.
And wilt thou then be gone, quoth she,
and will no longer stay with me:
Then welcome all my care and woe.

And then she tooke her lute in hand,
and thus began to play,
Her heart was faint she could not stand,
but on her bed shee lay,
And art thou gone my love, quoth she,
complaine my Lute, complaine with me
Untill that he doth come againe.

Some play us Adam and Eve, says Dick,
What's that, says little Pipe?
It is the beginning o'th'World, quoth Dick,
For we are Dancing-ripe:
It's that you call,
Then have at all,
He plaid with a merry Glee:
O then they did jerk it,
Caper and ferk it,
Under the Green-wood Tree.

From thence we go to Sir William's Ground,
And a Rich Old Cub is he;
And there we Dance around, around,
But the Devil a Penny we see:
From thence we get,
To Somerset,
Where Men be frolick and free:
And there they did jerk it,
Caper and ferk it,
Under the Green-wood Tree.

O'er Hills and Dales, and Whitsun-Ales,
We Dance a Merry fit;
When Susan sweet with John doth meet,
She gives him Hit for Hit;
From Head to Foot,
She holds him to't,
And Jumps as high as he;
O how they do spring it,
Flounce it and fling it,
Under the Green-wood Tree.

No time is spent with more content,
In City, Court, or Camp;
We fear no Covent-Garden Gout, Nor Pickadilly Cramp:
From Scurvy we Are always free,
And evermore shall be;
So long as we Whisk it,
Frig it and frisk it,
Under the Green-wood Tree.

On Meads and Launs, we trip like Fauns,
Like Fillies, Kids, or Lambs;
We have no twinge to make us cringe
Or crinkle in the Hams:
When some Disease
Doth on us seize,
With one Consent go we;
To Jigg it and Jirk it,
Ca-per and Ferk it,
Under the Green-wood Tree.

When we're well fir'd, and almost tir'd,
That Night is draw-ing on:
And that we must confess (as just)
Our Dancing day is done;
The Night is spent
With more content,
For then we all agree;
To Cock it and Dock it,
Smock it and Knock it,
Under the Green-wood Tree.

And Sauder all your Cracks;
What e'er you think here's dainty Ink,
And choice of Sealing-Wax:
Come Maids bring out your Kitchin-stuff,
Old Rags, or Women's Hair;
I'll sell you Pins for Coney-skins,
Come buy my Earthen-ware.

Come buy my Honey and my Book,
For Cuckolds to peruse;
Your Turnip-man is come again,
To tell his Dames some News:
I've Plumbs and Damsons very fine,
With very good mellow Pears;
Come buy a charming Dish of Fish,
And give it to your Heirs.

Come buy my Figs, before they're gone,
Here's Custards of the best;
And Mustard too, that's very new,
Tho' you may think I Jest:
My Holland-socks are very strong,
Here's Eels to skip and play;
My hot grey-pease buy if you please,
For I come no more to Day.

Small-coal young Maids I've brought you here,
The best that e'er you us'd;
Here's Cherries round and very sound,
If they are not abus'd ;
Here's Pippings lately come from Kent,
Pray taste and then you'll buy;
But mind my Song, and then e'er long,
You'll sing it as well as I.

Old Suits or Cloaks, or Campaign Wigs,
With Rusty Guns or Swords:
When Whores or Pimps do buy my Shrimps,
I never take their words:
Your Chimney clean my Boy shall sweep,
While I do him command;
Card Matches cheap by lump or heap,
The best in all the Land.

Come taste and buy my Brandy-Wine,
'Tis newly come from France:
This Powder now is good I vow,
Which I have got by chance;
New Mackerel the best I have,
Of any in the Town;
Here's Cloath to sell will please you well,
As soft as any Down.

Work for the Cooper, Maids give Ear,
I'll hoop your Tubs and Pails:
And if your sight it is not right,
Here's that that never fails:
Milk that is new come from the Cow,
With Flounders fresh and fair;
Here's Elder-buds to purge your Bloods,
And Onions keen and rare.

wife.

Sometime I goe i'the morning about my dayly worke,--
My wife she will be snorting,
And in her bed she'lurke Vntill the chimes doe goe at eight,
Then she'l beginne to wake;
Her morning's draught, well spiced straight,
To clear her eyes, she'l take.

As soone as shee is out of bed
Her looking-glass shee takes, (So vainly is she dayly led);
her morning's worke shee makes
In putting on her braue atyre,
That fine and costly be,
Whilst I worke hard in durt and mire,-- alacke! What remedy?

Then she goes foorth a gossiping
amongst her owne comrades;
And then she falls a bowsing with all her merry blades.
When I come home from my labour hard,
then she'e begin to scould,
And calls me rogue, without regard,
which makes my heart full cold.

When I come home into my house,
thinking to take my reste,
Then she'e begin me to abuse
(before she did but iest),
With "out, you raskall! You have beene abroad to meet your whoore!"- Then shee takes vp a cudgel's end, and breaks my head full sore.

Thus am I now tormented still with my most cruelle wife;
All through her wicked tongue so ill,
I am weary of my life:
I know not truly what to doe,
nor how my selfe to mend;
This lingring life doth breede my woe,
I would 'twere at an ende.

That some harmlesse honest man,
that death did so befriend,
To take his wife from off his hand,
his sorrowes for to end,
Would change with me, to rid my care,
and take my wife aliae
For his dead wife vnto his share, then I would hope to thriue.

But so it likely will not be,
that is the worst of all!
For, to encrease my dayly woe,
and for to breed my fall,
My wife is still most froward bent-such is my lucklesse fate!-
There is no man will be content with my vnhappy state.

Thus to conclude and make an ende
of these my verses rude,
I pray all wiues for to amende,
and with peace to be endude.
Take warning, all men, by the life that I sustained long,--
Be carefull how you'l chuse a wife,

Cuckold's Haven: or, The marry'd man's miserie tune is “The Spanish Gypsy” from

The English Dancing Master, 1651,
by John Playford (1623-1686)

O what a case is this:
O what a grieve it is!
My wife hath leam'd to kisse,
And thinkes 'tis not amisse:
Shee oftentimes doth me deride,
and tels me I am hornify'd.

What euer I doe say,
shee will haue her owne way;
Shee scorneth to obey;
Shee'll take time while she may;
And if I beate her backe and side,
In spight I shall be hornify'd.

Nay, you would little thinke
 how they will friendly link,
And how they'l sit and drink
 till they begin to wink:
And then, if Vulcan will but ride,
 Some Cuckold shall be hornify'd.

A woman that will be drunk,
 will eas'ly play the Punck;
For when her wits are sunk
 all keyes will fit her Trunk:
Then by experience oft is tride,
 poore men that way are hornify'd.

Thus honest men must beare,
and 'tis in vaine to feare,
For we are ne're the neare
our hearts with griefe to teare:
For, while we mourne, it is their pride
the more to keepe vs hornify'd.

And be we great or small,
we must be at their call;
How e're the Cards doe fall,
we men must suffer all:
Doe what we can, we must abide the paine of being hornify'd.

If they once bid vs goe,
 wee dare not twice say no,
Although too well we know
 'Tis to our griefe and woe:
Nay we are glad their faults to hide,
 though often we are hornify'd.

If I my wife prouoke with words in anger spoke,
Shee sweares she'll make all smoke,
 and I must be her Cloake:
Her basenesse and my wrongs I hide,
 and patiently am homify'd.

When these good Gossips meet
In Alley, Lane, or Street, (Poore men, we doe not see't!)
with Wine and Sugar sweet,
They arme themselves, and then, beside,
their husbands must be hornify'd.

Not your Italian Locks
(which seemes a Paradox)
Can keepe these Hens from Cocks, till they are paid with a Pox:
So long as they can goe or ride,
They'l haue their husbands hornify'd.

The more you haue intent
the business to preuent,
The more her mind is bent
your will to circumuent:
Such secret meanes they can prouide to get their husbands hornify'd.

For if we them doe blame, or tell them of their shame,— Although the men we name with whom they did the same,— They'l sweare who euer spake it ly'd.
thus still poore men are hornify'd.

All you that single be avoid this slauery:
Much danger is, you see,
 in womens company;
For he who to a wife is ty'd may looke still to be hornify'd.

Yet must I needs confesse
(though many doe transgresse)
A number numberlesse which virtue doe possesse.
And to their Husbands are a guide,— by such no man is hornify'd.

They who are of that race,
 this Ditie, in any case,
Is not to their disgrace;
 they are not for this place:
To such this only is apply'd
 by whom good men are hornify'd.

For why, the Kings vngacious sonne,
whom he did high aduance:
Against his Father raised warre,
within the Realme of France.
But yet before our comely King,
the English land forsooke:
Of Rosamond his Lady faire,
his farewell thus he tooke.

For at his parting, well they might in heart be grieued sore:
After that day, faire Rosamond
the King did see no more.
For when his grace had past the seas,
and into France was gone:
Queene Elinor, with eniuious heart,
to Woodstocke came anon.

But when the Queene with stedfast eyes beheld her heauenly face:
She was amazed in her mind,
at her exceeding grace.
Cast off thy Robes from thee, she said,
That rich and costly be:
And drinke thee vp this deadly draught
Which I haue brought for thee.

But presently vpon her knee,
sweet Rosamond did fall:
And pardon of her Queene she craud,
for her offences all.
Take pitty on my youthfull yeares,
faire Rosamund did cry:
And let me not with poysone strong,
enforced be to dye.

I will renounce this sinfull life,
and in a cloister bide:
Or else be banisht, if you please,
to range the world so wide.
And for the fault that I haue done,
though I were forct thereto:
Preserue my life, and punish me,
as you thinke best to do.

And with these words her Lilly hands
she wrung full often there:
And downe along her louely cheeke, proceeded many a teare.
But nothing could this furious Queene Therewith appeared be:
The cup of deadly poysone fil'd,
As she sat on her knee.

She gaue this comely Dame to drinke,
Who tooke it from her hand:
And from her bended knee arose,
And on her feet did stand.
And casting vp her eyes to Heauen,
She did for mercy call:
And drinking vp the poysone then,
Her life she lost with all.

And when that death through euyer limbe,
had done his greatest spight: her chiefest foes did plaine confesse
she was a glorious wight.
Her body then they did intomb,
when life was fled away:
At Godstow, neere to Oxford Towne
as may be seene this day.

This did the Fidler so provoke,
and all his Senses did surprise,
Then giving him a sturdy stroak,
a dreadful Quarrel did arise:
Thus blow for blow, then too't they go,
the Fidler he was stout and tall,
Then with a stroak, his Pipes he broke,
for playing the Game at Up-tails all.

Tush Husband, be not in a Rage,
I strive to Mollifie your mind,
Let reason now your wrath asswage,
for he has bin to me most kind:
I do profess, in my distress,
 his Love and kindness was not small;
Sweet Husband dear thou need not fear,
I scorn to play at Up-tails all.

Why should you be in such a heat,
dear Husband I was in a Sound,
He came to feel my Pulses beat,
as I lay panting on the ground:
Then why shouldst thou this Quarrel make,
to fight and chase, and fret and brawl,
I do protest 'tis your mistake,
to think we play'd at Up-tails all.

And when they were in this debate,
 the rest of all the tribe came in,
He did to them in brief Relate,
 what he before his eyes had seen,
He then did rave, and cal'd his Slave,
 and thus from words to blows did fall,
A bloody fray, was there that day,
 for playing thus at Uptails all.

The Pipers took their Pipers part,
and shook the Fidlers by the Cloak,
They with a bold undaunted heart,
did deal them many a sturdy stroak:
Their Cloaks they tore in this uproar,
as they in this confusion fall,
The Fidlers wife did cause the strife,
in playing a Game at Uptails all.

The Pipers and the Fidlers Maul, and now begins the Revel rout,
The Fiddles flew in pieces small,
and Bagg-pipes they did flye about,
Those haughty fools, did break their tools their Crouds and pipes in pieces small,
And she this while did stand and smile,
to think of the Game of Uptails all.

At length this did subdue the pride,
 of all this cross confused crew,
The Room bestrew'd from side to side,
 with pipe and broken Fiddles too:
So now this rout, and dreadful bout,
 did prove the Fidlers fatal fall,
And Pipers too, and all the Crew,
 did curse the Game of Uptails all.

Those Pipers and those Fidlers they,
yea, every man and Mothers son,
Had never an Instrument to play,
those creeping Curs are all undone:
And now too late, they curse their Fate,
they tare their hair and fret their gall,
For in this fight they are Ruin'd quite,
and Swear they'l ne'r play Uptails all.

Early One Morning
The Lamenting maid & the Answer

tune from English folk song

Music score for the first section of "Early One Morning". The key signature is F major (one sharp). The melody is in soprano clef, and the bass line is in bass clef. The lyrics are:

Ear - ly one mor - ning, just as the sun was ri - sing,
How can you slight _____ a poor _____ girl that loves _____ you,

Accompaniment notes are provided for both the melody and bass lines.

Music score for the second section of "Early One Morning". The key signature changes to B-flat major (two flats). The melody is in soprano clef, and the bass line is in bass clef. The lyrics are:

There did I hear _____ a fair _____ maid say,
False heart - ed young _____ man tell _____ me for why,

Accompaniment notes are provided for both the melody and bass lines.

Music score for the third section of "Early One Morning". The key signature changes to C major (no sharps or flats). The melody is in soprano clef, and the bass line is in bass clef. The lyrics are:

Cry - ing O Cu - pid, O give to me my lo - ver, Send What was your fool - ish no - tion to plow the ra - ging o - cean To Accompaniment notes are provided for both the melody and bass lines.

Down in the meadows, and sweet shady bowers,
They can witness the vows to me you made,
Go false hearted pretender, don't you remember,
Before you went to sea, my poor heart you betrayed.

How can you slight a poor harmless maiden,
How would you like for to be served so,
The seas you are ranging, your mind always changing,
You ever more are seeking for beauty that's new.

Who's that I hear making such lamentation,
Surely it is the voice of my love,
I'll be no longer cruel unto my dearest jewel,
But constant and true like the turtle dove.

Though I've been plowing on the wide ocean,
For honour and gold to bring to my dear,
Now the wars are over, I'll be no more a rover,
For a sailor's heart is ever sincere.

And when you have ranged the world all over,
The truth of my love you surely then will find,
Some they will cheat you, and false hearts will meet you,
But my Love to you is of the purest kind.

Should you fall in love with a false hearted woman,
Perhaps she may slight you and treat you unkind,
Anguish, grief, & sorrow, they will bid you good morrow,
The truth of a lover you surely then will find.

ANSWER to the Lamenting Maid.

Though I have rang'd and have seen many a fair one
And many have sought my heart to invade,
The truth I discover, I ne'er sought a lover,
For 'tis you alone the conquest has made.

Why does my fair one then sit hesitating,
Let us go to the church, where I'll make you my wife,
I am no pretender, my heart I'll surrender,
Then take it in keeping and bless me for life.

What Phenix so faire, that liveth alone,
Is vowed to chastity, being but one;
But be not, my Darling, so chaste in desire,
Lest thou like the Phenix, do penance in fire.

But alas! (gallant Lady) I pity thy state,
In being resolved to live without mate;
For if of our courting the pleasure you knew
You shall have a liking the same to ensue.

I grant faire Ladies may poore men resist,
But Princes will conquer and love whom they list:
A King may command her to lie by his side,
Whose feature deserveth to be a Kings Bride.

Then be not resolved to dye a true Maid,
But print in thy bosome the words I have said:
And grant a King favour thy true love to be,
That I may say welcome sweet Virgin to me.

The faire Maid of London's answer

OH wanton King Edward thy labour is vaine,
To follow the pleasure thou canst not attaine,
Which getting thou losest, and having dost wast it
The which is thou purchase is spoild if thou hast it:

But if thou obtainst it thou nothing hast won,
And I losing nothing yet quite am undone,
But if of that Jewell a King doe deceive me,
No King can restore though a Kingdom he give me.

All men have their freedom to shew their intent,
They win not a woman unless she consent;
Who, then, can impute to a man any fault,
Who still goes uprightly while women doe halt.

'Tis counted kindnesse in men for to try,
And virtue in women the same to deny;
For women inconstant can never be prov'd,
Untill by their betters therein they be mov'd.

No, no, my old Father's reverent teares
Too deepe an impression within my soul beares;
Nor shall his bright honour that blot, by me, have
To bring his gray haire with grieve to the grave.

Come rather with pity to weepe on my Tombe,
Then, for my birth, curse my deare mother's Womb,
That brought forth a blossome that stained the tree
With wanton desires to shame her and me.

In London he was well knowne:
 In many a stately House,
 He layd a Bayte, whose deadye fate,
 Did kill both Ratte and Mouse.
 And still would he cry, a Rat, etc.

But on a time, a Damosell,
 did him so farre intice,
 That for her, a Baite he layd straight, would kill no Rats nor Mice.
 And still would he cry, a Rat, etc.

And on the Bayte shee nibled,
 so pleasing in her tast, Shee lickt so longe, that the Poyson strong did make her swell i' th' wast.
 And still would he cry, a Rat, etc.

The Ratketchers out of France To London.

In France when he arrived,
 the heat so much perplext him,
 That all his Pouch did swell so much,
 and Poyson so had vext him.
 That scarce could he cry, a Rat, etc.

At last, as Witches common,
 must use another's ayding:
 So did this Ratter, tell the matter to another o'f's owne trading.
 And then did he cry, a Rat tat tat, etc.

Who using many Simples,
 to quench his fiery burning:
 Did make him daunce cleane out of France,
 And home hee's now returning.
 And still doth he cry, a Rat, etc.

He, subtilely this perceiuinge,
 to the Country straight doth hye him,
 Where, by his skill, he poysoneth still such vermine as come nye him.
 And still would he cry, a Rat, etc.

He was soe braue a bowzer, that it was doubtfull whether He taught the Rats, or the Rats taught him, to be drunke as Rats together.
 And still would he cry, a Rat, etc.

When he had tript this Ilande from Bristow vnto Douer, With painefull Bagge, and painted flagge,
 to France he sayled over.
 For still would he cry, a Rat, etc.

At Dover he arrived, and Kent hath had his cunning:
 The Maydens Lappes like poisoned Rattes repent his backe-home coming.
 For still doth he cry, a Rat, etc.

At Gravesend 'mongst the Maydens,
 Greene sicknesse reign'd so briefly,
 None could have cure, but such as sure would take his Potions chiefly.
 And still doth he cry, a Rat, etc.

When backe he commeth home-ward,
 obserue his Flagge bepainted
 With Mice and Rattes, and with Poulcats,
 if you will be acquainted,
 And heare him to cry, a Rat tat tat, tara Rat, ever:
 To catch a Mouse, or to carouse,
 Such a Ratter I saw never.

I have but a Marke a yeare,
And that my mother gaue me.

I have but a Marke a yeare,
And that my mother gaue me.

Though I am but a silly Wench of countrey education, Yet I am woo'd by Dutch and French,
and almost every nation:
Both Spaniards and Italians sweare that with their hearts they love me deare:
Yet I have but a Marke a yeare,
And that my mother gaue me.

The Welch, the Irish, and the Scot,
since I came to the Citie,
In loue to me are wondrous hot,-- they tell me I am pretty:
Therefore to live I will not feare,
for I am sought with many a teare;
Yet I have but a Marke a yeare,
And that my mother gaue me.

This London is a gallant place,
to raise a Lasses fortune;
For I, that came of simple race,
brave Roarers do importune;
I little thought, in Wostersheere,
to find such high preferment here:
For I have but a Marke a yeare,
and that my mother gaue Me.

One gives to me perfumed Gloves,
the best that he can buy me;
Live where I will, I have the loves of all that doe live nigh me:
If any new toyes I will weare,
I have them, cost they ne're so deare,--
And this is for a Mark a yeare,
and that my mother gaue Me.

My fashions with the Moone I change,
as though I were a Lady;
All quaint conceits, both new and strange,
Ile have as soon as may be;
Your courtly Ladies I can jeere;
In cloaths but few to me come neare,
Yet I have but a Marke a year,
And that my mother gaue me.

I'th pleasant'st place the Suburbs yeelds
my lodging is preparèd;
I can walke forth into the fields,
where beauties oft are airèd;
When Gentlemen doe spy me there,
some compliments I'me sure to heare;
Though I have but a marke a yeare,
and that my mother gaue me.

Now, if my friends were living still,
I would them all abandon,
Though I confesse they lov'd me well,
yet I so like of London
That, farewell! Dad and Mammy deare, and all my friends in Worstershire
I live well with a marke a yeare,
which my old mother gaue me.

Now, blessed be that happy day that I came to the Citie!
And for the Carrier will I pray,
before I end my Ditty.
You Maidens that this Ditty heare,
Though meanes be short, yet never feare,
For I live with a Marke a yeare,
Which my old mother gaue me.

 In vain I shed my tears both night and day,
 In vain my love my sorrows do bewray.

Then I will leave my love in fortunes hands,
 My dearest love in most unconstant bands,
 And onely serve the sorrows dew to me,
 Sorrows hereafter thou shalt my Mistris be.

No man alive can Fortunes spight withstand,
 With wisdom, skill, or mighty strength of hand;
 In midst of mirth she bringeth bitter moan,
 And woe to me that hath her hatred known.

If wisdoms eyes had but blind Fortune seen,
 Then had my love, my love forever been;
 Then, love, farewell, though Fortune favour thee,
 No fortune frail shall ever conquer me.

The Ladies comfortable and pleasant Answer

Ah silly soul, art thou so afraid?
 Mourn not my dear nor be not so dismayd.
 Fortune cannot, with all her power and skill,
 Enforce my heart to think the any ill.

Blame not thy chance, nor envy at thy choice,
 No cause hast thou to curse, but to rejoice,
 Fortune shall not thy joy and love deprive,
 If by my love it may remain alive.

Receive therefore thy life again to thee,
 Thy life and love shall not be lost by me,
 And while thy heart upon thy life do stay,
 Fortune shall never steal the same away.

Live thou in bliss and banish death to Hell,
 All careful thoughts see thou from thee expel;
 As thou doth wish, thy love agrees to be,
 For proof whereof behold I come my self to thee.

Pluck up thy heart, suprest with brinish tears,
 Torment me not, but take away thy fears;
 Thy Mistris mind brooks no unconstant bands
 Much less to live in rueing fortunes hands.

Though mighty Kings by fortune get the foyl,
 Lossing thereby their travel and their toyl;
 Though fortune be to me a cruel foe,
 Fortune shall not make me to serve thee so.

For fortunes spight thou needst not care a pin,
 For thou thereby shall never loose nor win;
 If faithful love and favour I do find,
 My recompense shall not remain behind.

Dye not in fear, nor live in discontent,
 Be thou not slain, where never blood was ment,
 Revive again, to faint thou hast no need,
 The less afraid, the better thou shalt speed.

Full fathom five

music by Robert Johnson
(c.1560-1633)

The musical score consists of three staves of music. The top staff uses a treble clef, the middle staff a bass clef, and the bottom staff a bass clef. The music is in common time. The lyrics are integrated into the musical lines, with some words written below the staff and others above. The first section starts with a treble clef, a key signature of one sharp, and a tempo marking of $\text{C} = 120$. The lyrics begin with "Full fathom five thy Father lies; Of his bones are Cor - ral made: Those are". The second section begins at measure 6 with a treble clef, a key signature of one sharp, and a tempo marking of $\text{C} = 120$. The lyrics continue with "pearles that were his eies, No - thing of him that doth fade, Both doth suf - fer a". The third section begins at measure 11 with a treble clef, a key signature of one sharp, and a tempo marking of $\text{C} = 120$. The lyrics end with "Sea - change, In - to some - thing rich, & strange: Sea - Nymphs hour - ly ring his knell,". The score includes various dynamics like f (fortissimo), p (pianissimo), and mf (mezzo-forte). The bass staff also includes optional lines indicated by a small asterisk (*).

from a broadside, 1682?

The Good Fellows Frolick

tune is "The health" from
The English Dancing Master,
1651, John Playford (1623-1686)

The musical score consists of three staves of music in common time, key signature of one sharp (F#), and treble clef. The lyrics are integrated into the music, with each line of text corresponding to a specific musical measure.

Staff 1: Measures 1-4. Key changes: G major (measures 1-2), Am (measure 3), C (measure 4). The lyrics describe a crew of blades and a jolly carman.

Staff 2: Measures 1-4. Key: C major. The lyrics continue the narrative of the crew and blades.

Staff 3: Measures 1-4. Key: C major. The lyrics continue the narrative of the crew and blades.

Staff 1: Measures 5-8. Key changes: C major (measures 5-6), F major (measure 7), C major (measure 8). The lyrics describe a man meeting in an alehouse.

Staff 2: Measures 5-8. Key: C major. The lyrics continue the narrative of the man meeting in an alehouse.

Staff 3: Measures 5-8. Key: C major. The lyrics continue the narrative of the man meeting in an alehouse.

Staff 1: Measures 9-12. Key changes: G major (measures 9-10), Am (measure 11), C (measure 12). The lyrics describe a bonny seaman.

Staff 2: Measures 9-12. Key: G major. The lyrics continue the narrative of the bonny seaman.

Staff 3: Measures 9-12. Key: G major. The lyrics continue the narrative of the bonny seaman.

swo're that he his his guts could burst, With Ale that was so brown.
there he like a mad - man swore, he lov'd the Ale so brown.

The nimble Weaver he came in,
and swore he'd have a little,
To drink good Ale it was no sin,
thought made him pawn his Shittle: Quoth he, I am a Gentleman,
no lusty Countrey-Clown,
But yet I love, with all my heart,
The Ale that is so brown.

Then next the Blacksmith he came in,
and said 'twas mighty hot;
He sitting down did thus begin,
fair maid bring me a pot:
Let it be of the very best,
that none exceeds in Town,
I tell you true, and do not jest,
I love the Ale that is so brown.

The prick-louse Taylor he came in,
whose Tongue did run so nimble,
And said he would ingage for drink
His Bodkin and his Thimble:
For though with long thin Jaws I look,
I value not a crown,
So I can have my belly full
Of Ale that is so brown.

The lusty Porter passing by with Basket on his back,
He said that he was grievous dry,
and needs would pawn his Sack:
His angry wife he did not fear,
he valued not her frown;
So he had that he lov'd so dear,
I mean the Ale so brown.

The next that came was one of them
was of the gentle craft,
And when that he was wet within,
most heartily he laugh'd,
Crispin was ne'r so boon as he,
tho' some Kinn to a Crown;
And there he sate most merrily with Ale that was so brown.

But at the last a Barber he a mind had for to taste;
He called for a pint of drink
and said he was in haste:
The drink so pleas'd, he tarried there till he had spent a crown;
'Twas all the money he could spare
for Ale that is so brown.

A Broom-man, as he passed by,
his mornings-draught did lack;
Because that he no money had he pawn'd his shirt from's back:
And said that he without a shirt,
would cry Brooms up and down;
But yet, quoth he, I'le merry be with Ale that is so brown.

But when all these together met,
oh what discourse was there!
'Twould make ones hair to stand an end, to hear how they did swear.
One was a fool and puppy-dogg,
the other was a clown;
And there they sate, and swill'd their guts
with Ale that was so brown.

The Landlady they did abuse,
and call'd her nasty Whore; Quoth she, do you your reckoning pay,
and get you out of door:
Of them she could no money get,
which caused her to frown;
But loath they were to leave behind the Ale that was so brown.

Notes

- “A la mode de France, or, the French Report” – The melody is “Nonesuch” from The English Dancing Master, 1651, by John Playford (1623-1686). The ballad was probably written in 1642 or 1643 when the Queen was in Holland raising money for the English civil war. No broadside edition has survived, but it was included in Rump: Or an Exact Collection of the Choycest Poems and Songs Relating to the Late Times. By the Most Eminent Wits, from Anno 1639. to Anno 1661, 1662. The accent of the speaker is supposed to be Dutch. All five verses are presented here.

- “Adeu, O desie of delyt” - The music by Andro Blackhall (1536-1609) is an adaptation of a popular melody, “The Banks of Helicon.” Lyrics are by Alexander Montgomerie (c.1540-1598) from Margarcat Ker’s manuscript, Eu De.3.70, c.1600. The tenor and soprano lines are switched from the original tenor song setting in the Thomas Wode partbooks (1562-c.1592), also known as the Saint Andrews Psalter. These part books were copied by Thomas Wode (fl. 1560-92), who was Canon of Lindores Abbey through 1560, then Vicar at St. Andrews in Scotland from 1575. The originals are located in the following manuscripts:

Cantus 1 (GB-Eu La.III.483.1)
Altus 1 (GB-Lbl Add.33933)
Tenor 1 (GB-Eu La.III.483.2)
Bassus 1 (GB-Eu La.III.483.3)
Quintus 1 (IRL-Dtc MS 412)
Cantus 2 (GB-Eu Dk.5.14)
Altus 2 (US-Wgu MS 10)
Bassus 2 (GB-Eu Dk.5.15)

All four of the original verses are included here.

The lute, Renaissance guitar and keyboard parts are my creations based on the original part song with the tenor and top lines swapped.

- “Ah, robyn” (originally “A robyn gentyl robyn”) is a dialogue set by William Cornysh (1465-1523) from the 16th century manuscript known as the Henry VIII manuscript, British Library Add MS 31922, c.1510-1520.

The second and third lines of the setting are in canon. Only the lyrics of verse 1 are underlaid in the manuscript. Verse 1 is probably by Sir Thomas Wyatt (1503-1542) from his poem, while verses 2 and 3 are taken directly from Wyatt’s poem. I have added punctuation throughout and have changed a to ah in the title and lyrics. Even though it converses with the singer, the robyn is a bird, rather than a person.

The lute, Renaissance guitar and keyboard parts are my creations based on the original song.

- “Alas, my harte doth boyle” is subtitled “A Newe Ballade of a Louer extollinge his Ladye.” The text and melody are from an Elizabethan broadside by M. Osb[orne?] dated 1568. This is almost the only Elizabethan broadside printed with music, according to Claude Simpson in The British Broadside Ballad, 1966. As printed, the melody requires a lot of guesswork and alteration to fit the lyrics. The name for this tune is given as “Damon and Pithias.” This tune is designated in A Handfull of Pleasant Delites, 1584, as the music for a ballad beginning “You Ladies falsly deemd,/of anie fault or crime,” was also used for other songs from 1566 and circa 1570. All of the original 9 verses are included here.

- “All Trades are not alike in show” is a broadside ballad labeled “A merry new catch of all Trades,” perhaps from 1620, that lists many occupations of the time. The tune called for is “The cleane Contrary way”, from Cambridge University MS Dd.6.48. That version of the melody does not fit the lyrics very well, so I have removed one repeat and two measures from the music. All of the original 21 verses are included here.

- “An Amourous Dialogue between Iohn and his Mistris. Being a compleat and true Relation of some merry passages between the Mistris and her Apprentice, who pleas’d her so well that she rewarded him with fifty broad pieces for his pains.” - The anonymous lyrics are from a broadside ballad printed between 1672 and 1696. The tune is “Packington’s Pound,” which survives in numerous settings dating from as early as 1596. “Packington’s Pound” was the most popular tune for ballads in the 16th and 17th centuries, with over one hundred ballads calling for it. Verses 1-5, 8, 9 and 12 of the original 12 are included here. I have capitalized I'm, I'me and I'le in the verses for clarity.

• “As I walkt forth” was a broadside ballad from c. 1619-1629 with the title “The deceased Maiden-Louer” and a continuation called “The Faithlesse Louer”, with 18 verses in total. A new tune was written for the ballad by Robert Johnson (c.1560-1633), who was a lutenist for Queen Elizabeth and wrote songs for some of Shakespeare’s plays. Johnson’s version was printed as melody and bass line with only 4 verses in Select Musicall Ayres, and Dialogues, 1652, by John Playford (1623-1686). It was later printed with a different bass line in The Treasury of Musick: containing ayres and dialogues to sing to the theorbo-lute or basse-viol, 1669, also published by Playford. The song also appeared later in other collections. All 4 verses from Select Musicall Ayres, and Dialogues (with small lyric changes from the The Treasury of Musick version) are included here.

- “As one without refuge” is subtitled “A proper sonet, wherin the Louer dolefully sheweth his grief to his L. & requireth pity.” The tune is “Row well, ye mariners” from The English Dancing Master, 1651, by John Playford (1623-1686), although I have adapted parts from the setting in Schoole of Musicke, 1603, by Thomas Robinson (fl.1589-1609). The anonymous lyrics are from A Handfull of Pleasant Delites, 1584. Verses 1-3 and 6 of the original 6 are included here. The second verse appears to rhyme “lookes” with itself.

- “As you came from Walsingham”- The lyrics are by Thomas Deloney (d.1600) from The Garland of Goodwill, 1592 or 3. The song begins as a dialogue between an old man and a traveler returning from a pilgrimage to the city of Walsingham. The song then becomes a discussion of the nature of love. The tune has survived in several settings, including a keyboard setting by William Byrd (1542-1623) in BL MS Mus. 1591, My Ladie Nevells Booke, 1591, where it is titled “Have with yow to Walsingham.” Verses 1-8 and 10-11 of the original 11 are included here.

- “Baloo baleerie” is a traditional Scottish lullaby. “Baloo” is the Scottish word for lullaby, and “baleerie” is a made up word. “Peerie” means small. A “ben” is a small inner room. A translation to modern English might be “Go away, little fairies from our room. Come down, fair angels, to our room. Sleep softly, my baby, in our room.”

- “Barbara Allen’s Cruelty” is a ballad, first mentioned in 1666, whose lyrics survive in several 17th century blackletter editions. The printed versions do not indicate any tune, therefore I used the tune traditionally associated with the ballad. Verses 2, 3, 6-9, 13 & 15 of the original 15 from the broadside of c.1675-1690 are included here. The full title of this version is “Barbara Allen’s Cruelty: / OR, THE / Young-man’s Tragedy. / With Barbara Allen’s Lamentation for her Unkindness to her Lover, and / her Self.”

A broadside version of the lyrics was licensed in 1624, but the very similar version used here is from later in the 17th century. There is a traditional version of this song known as “The Knight and Shepherd’s Daughter” (Child no.110). Verses 1-8, 10-19, and 22-27 of the original 27 are included here.

- “Behold a wonder here” is a lute song for one voice from The Third and Last Booke of Songs or Aires, 1603, by John Dowland (1563-1626). To make a part song version, I utilized the lute part to create the other vocal lines. All 5 verses are included here.

- “Blame not my lute” is subtitled “The lover's lute cannot be blamed/though it sings of his lady's vnkindness.” The lyrics are by Sir Thomas Wyatt (1503-1542), poet and ambassador for Henry VIII. Wyatt's poems were not published until 15 years after his death, in Tottel's Miscellany, 1557. The musical setting uses the folia ground bass pattern and is partially based on “Mes pas semez” from Second livre de Guitare, 1556, by Adrian Le Roy (c.1520-1598). All 6 verses from the poem are included here.

- “Calen o Custure me” – The lyrics by Clement Robinson (fl. 1566-1584) are from A Handfull of Pleasant Delites, 1584. A version of the song is bound together with William Ballet lute book, Trinity College TCD MS 408, 1593. It is the earliest known annotation of an Irish song. According to Breandán Breathnach in Folk Music and Dances of Ireland, 1977, "Calen o custure me" is a corruption of Cailín ó Chois tSiúre mé (I am a girl from the Suir-side). In a poem beginning Mealltar bean le beagán téad (a woman is wooed with a few strings) found in a late seventeenth-century manuscript from Fermanagh, Cailín ó Chois tSiúre is mentioned with the names of other songs, the singing of which, the poet declares, would have been a more profitable occupation for him than writing poetry. All of Robinson’s lyrics are included.

The four part setting, lute, Renaissance guitar and keyboard parts are my creations based on the setting by William Byrd (1542-1623), Fitzwilliam Museum MU.MS.168, c.1562-1612.

- “Can she excuse my wrongs with vertues cloake” is from the First Booke of Songes or Ayres, 1597, by John Dowland (1563-1626). This song is about a lover questioning whether his beloved can excuse her withholding of sexual favors by claiming herself virtuous (the wrongs are done to him, not by him). The tune was originally a lute solo by Dowland called “The Right Honourable Robert, Earl of Essex, his Galliard.”

The Renaissance guitar and keyboard adaptions are my creations.

- “The Carmans whistle” – The music is based on the William Byrd (1542-1623) keyboard setting from My Ladye Nevells Booke, 1591. The song is mentioned in Gerileon of England, 1592, as “odious and lasciuious ribauldrie.” The lyrics were copied circa 1580-1590 into the Bodleian Library MS Rawlinson 185. All 13 verses are included here. Carmen were known for the tunes they whistled, although the title does suggest a double entendre.

The four part adaptation, lute, Renaissance guitar and keyboard parts are my creations.

- “Cleare or cloudie sweet as Aprill showring” is a part song for 5 voices from The Second Booke of Songes or Ayres, 1600, by John Dowland (1563-1626). The fourth line is labeled “For a treble Violl” and does not enter until near the end of the song.

The Renaissance guitar and keyboard adaptions are my creations.

- “Come againe: sweet loue doth now inuite” is a lute song as well as a part song with 4 vocal lines by John Dowland (1563-1626) from the First Booke of Songes or Ayres, 1597. This song is a perfect example of the oft-used double meaning of “to die” as “to achieve sexual climax.” In the original, the stanzas after the first (the only stanza underlaid in the original), are numbered 2, then 1-4 again.

The Renaissance guitar and keyboard parts are my creations.

- “Come away, come sweet loue” is a part song from the First Boooke of Songes or Ayres, 1597, by John Dowland (1563-1626).

- “Come gentle herdman sitt with me” is a lute song from BL Add. MS 15117, c.1614-1630. It is a dialogue wherein a shepherd and a herdsman discuss the shepherd’s hopeless love for Daphne. Only a single verse of the herdsman’s reply survives in the manuscript, but more verses survive in A Poetical Rapsody, 1602, by Francis Davison (1575?-1621?). The tune given in the manuscript is that of “Goe from my window”, first registered in 1588, although a moralization appeared earlier in A Compendious Book of Godly and Spiritual Songs, 1567. The simple tune was a favorite for variations, with more than a dozen surviving lute versions, a fantasia by Orlando Gibbons, and keyboard variations by Thomas Morley, Thomas Mundy and William Byrd. The herdsman’s answer is given in the lute manuscript with a melody which works as a descendant to the original melody. I have used that harmonization as the alto line of the shepherd’s verses. I have included all verses from the manuscript, as well as verses 2, 3, 5 and 7 from A Poetical Rapsody.

The tenor and bass lines, Renaissance guitar and keyboard parts are my creations.

- “Come hither you that loue” - The music is by Robert Johnson (c.1583-1633) from the Edinburgh University Library manuscript Dc.I.69, “Songs in the hand of Edward Lowe.” The melody and bass lines are given in the original manuscript. In the Drexel Ms. 4257, there is another setting with a second verse of lyrics. Lyrics used here are by Francis Beaumont (1584-1616) and John Fletcher (1579-1625) from The Captain; or The Town Miss, c. 1609–12; printed 1647.

The alto and tenor lines, lute, Renaissance guitar and keyboard parts are my creations.

- “Come live with me and be my Love” – The lyrics to “The Passionate Sheepheard to his love” by Christopher Marlowe (1564-1593) were first printed in Shakespeare’s The Passionate Pilgrim, 1599, and then in England’s Helicon, 1600. The lyrics were printed with “The Nymphs Reply” by Sir Walter Ralegh (1552-1618) on a broadside entitled “A most excellent Ditty of the Louers promises to his beloved.” The earliest surviving source for the melody is William Corkine (fl. 1610 - 1617) in his Second Book of Ayres, 1612. John Donne wrote a parody of “The Passionate Shepherd to his love” and “The Nymph’s Reply” entitled “Come live with mee, and bee my love,” about fish. All 6 verses of Marlowe’s and all 6 verses of Ralegh’s are included here.

- “Come ouer the born Bessy” is a dialogue between Bessy (Queen Elizabeth I) and England. The lyrics are by William Birch (fl.1558-1571). The broadside was entered in the Stationer's Register to W. Copland in 1558-59 and to Pickering on 4 Sept. 1564. The music is adapted from lute versions in the Cambridge University Dd.2.11 manuscript, c.1585-95, copied by Matthew Holmes, and the Welde Lute Book, c.1600. I have capitalized “Bessie” and “Bessy” throughout, although they were never capitalized in the original. I have changed “what art thou that biddes me come away” to “who biddes me come away” in the first verse. “E:” in the lyrics indicates England, and “B:” indicates Bessy, Queen Elizabeth. All of the original 11 verses are included here.

- “Come sweet Loue, let sorrow cease” is a broadside ballad of before 1609 beginning “When of late I sought my bed.” It was printed beginning with the third verse in The golden garland of princely pleasures and delicate delights, 1620, by Richard Johnson (1573-1659?). The tune called for is Bara Faustus Dream. For sources, I have used versions from Paris Bibliothéque

Nationale MS Rés. 1186, 1635-1638, for keyboard and Tablature de Luth, entitulé Le Secret des Muses, 1618-1619, by Nicolas Vallet (c.1583–c.1642), for lute. All of the four verses in The golden garland... are included here.

- “Complain my Lute” is a ballad with lyrics from an anonymous broadside from 1619-1629?, although it was probably written before 1600. The tune is “Heart’s ease” from The English Dancing Master, 1651, by John Playford (1623-1686). The tune is referenced in Misogonus, II, ii, attributed to Laurence Johnson (c.1560-1577). All 8 original verses are included here.

- “The Country Man’s Delight” – The tune is “Sellenger’s Round” from William Byrd’s setting in Fitzwilliam Museum MU.MS.168, c.1562-1612. “Sellenger’s Round” is also named “The beginning of the world” (which is the tune called for by the dancers in the song lyrics), in the third edition of John Playford’s Dancing Master, 1657 & 1665. The lyrics are from Wit and Mirth, or Pills to Purge Melancholy Volume IV, 1719, by Thomas D’Urfey (1653-1723). Included are verses 1-4, 10 and 12-14 of the original 14. D’Urfey printed a different tune for the song.

- “The Cries of London” - “The Second part of the Trader’s Medley or, the cries of London” is from the 1707 edition of Pills to Purge Melancholy, although the tune given was probably an older popular dance tune. This song is one of many popular songs recollecting the many cries of London street peddlers. The earliest known example is found in "London Lyckpenny," a poem by Dan John Lydgate, a Benedictine monk of Bury St. Edmunds, who flourished in the middle of the fifteenth century. “The Traders Medley: or the Crys of London,” presumably being the first part of this song, was published in 1694 in The Midship-Man’s Garland. - “Depart, departe” –The lyrics are by Alexander Scott (c.1515-1583) from the Bannatyne manuscript, 1568, National Library of Scotland MS Advocates 1.1.6. The song refers to the Battle of Pinkie in 1547. It is a monologue for the Maister of Erskyn, lover of the widowed Queen Marie of Guise. The music is from the Thomas Wode partbooks, 1562-c.1592. The tune is probably French and may have been used for a song in Ane Satyr of the Thrie Estaitis in 1540. Verses 1-3 and 6 of the original 6 are included here.

- “Diddle, Diddle” – the lyrics are from a London broadsheet ballad printed between 1674 and 1679 for F. Coles. The tune called for is “Lavender green.” The first 4 lines of the first verse are used here for a refrain. Verse 1, with the latter half of verse 3, and verses 4, and 6 to 10 of the original 10 are included. Music is from E. F. Rimbault’s Nursery Rhymes, c.1846, which states under the song title,

*With sly insinuations he persuades her
And by the bands of Love, along he leads her.
Relating pleasant stories for to bind her
And all to make her unto him prove kinder.
And so in Love at last they live together
With pleasant dayes enjoying one another.*

- “Faire Angell of England” is a blackletter ballad (1601-1640?) about the “Princely wooing of the faire Maid of London by King Edward,” referring to Edward I (1239-1407). The earliest extant copy of this ballad was issued by Henry Gossen (fl. 1603-1640). The ballad is to the tune of “Bonny sweet Robbin,” a very popular tune of the late sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries. Verses 1-4, 9, 13-15, 20-21, 23 and 25 of the original 26 are included here.

- “I saw my Lady weepe” is a lute song for cantus and bassus voices by John Dowland (1563-1626) from The Second Booke of Songs or Ayres, of 2, 4, and 5. Parts: With Tableture for the Lute or Orpherian, with the Violl de Gamba, 1600. The song is dedicated “To the most famous, Anthony Holborne.” I have created the two inner lines from the lute part and have underlaid the verses to create a four voice part song. In his modern study entitled Dowland, Lachrimae (1604), Peter Holman suggests that, falling just before “Flow my teares” in Dowland’s second book of songs, it was meant as an introduction to that song. As such, it was to be performed immediately followed by “Flow my teares,” where the first chord is a natural resolution to the last chord of “I saw my Lady weepe.”

Full fathom five = five fathoms deep

- “Good Fellowes must go learne to Daunce” is a blackletter ballad printed in 1569. Years earlier, William Parsons (fl. 1545-1563) wrote a version for 4 voices that is not particularly suitable for a popular ballad, and there is no tune indication on the broadsheet. There are 7 verses on the ballad sheet, but the last 3 are a different song unrelated to the first 4 verses. I have set the lyrics to the dance “Ronde V” from Danserie, 1551, by Tielman Susato (c.1500-c.1561). Verses 1-4 of 7 are included here.
